BREST FALLS TO RUSSIANS, SAYS MESSAGE FROM BERLIN

Continuance of Bolshevik Advance Admitted in Official Communiqué Issued by Warsaw War Office—Lomza and Other Cities Taken.

DELEGATES GATHER FOR TRUCE PARLEY

No News of Progress of Armistice Negotiations at Baranovitch Reaches European Capital—Poles Will Not Accept Soviet.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Aug. 2.—The fortress of Brest-Litovsk, the stronghold 110 miles east of Warsaw on the boundary of Poland proper, is reported to have been captured by the Russians, according to a wireless dispatch from Berlin.

A continuance of the Bolshevik advance west of Bialystok, with the occupation of towns and villages, is reported in Saturday's communiqué of the Russian War Office at Moscow.

The Russian Soviet army is now within 15 miles of Warsaw. It has captured Lomza, which is just that distance northeast of the Polish capital and the towns of Kolno and Mlawa, near the German border, in the Lomza region.

Polish Delegates Reach Spot for Armistice Conference.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, Aug. 2.—Polish plenipotentiaries appointed to negotiate an armistice agreement with representatives of the Russian Bolshevik Government have arrived at Baranovitch, where the armistice conference will be held, according to advices from Warsaw.

While the crossing of no man's land was arranged to take place at 8 o'clock, there was an hour's delay due to a misunderstanding in signals owing to the difference in time kept by the two armies, and the Poles were obviously agitated by the wait imposed upon them before the jump-off from the Polish front to the Soviet lines.

The crossing was made in a quiet sector, in the region of Kobryn. Seven Polish automobiles bore the plenipotentiaries. The cars carried white flags. The motor bearing Gen. Romer, the head of the delegation, went over the line first and three of the other cars followed closely, according to an American official who witnessed the crossing. The official said that just after Gen. Romer's car and the three others immediately following had passed over the bridge leading from one front to the other, the bridge caught fire. The three remaining cars, carrying the aide and secretaries, with their documents, were delayed for a while, but eventually succeeded in catching up with Gen. Romer and his party by taking another route.

The Polish military authorities attach no significance to the bridge fire, as there were no Bolsheviks in that vicinity at the time. They said the fire probably had been smoldering, as there had been fighting near the bridge for several days, and that it was likely the coals had been fanned into flames by a breeze that sprang up during the evening.

The plenipotentiaries representing Poland in the armistice conference at Baranovitch have been instructed not to concede any points that might endanger Poland's independence, according to an interview with Vice Premier Daszynski. It had been intimated in various quarters that the Soviets would insist upon the establishment of a Soviet Government in Poland before even granting an armistice, but the Polish plenipotentiaries have been instructed to make no concessions which would permit the Soviets to interfere with the interior affairs of Poland.

The instructions to the Polish delegates were issued by the Polish government.

WOMEN'S BATTALION SUFFERS HEAVY LOSSES IN DEFENSE OF VILNA

WARSAW, Aug. 2.—Warsaw has been brought into closer contact with the front by the arrival, in a shattered condition, of a women's battalion which fought in the defense of Vilna. The battalion suffered heavy losses and is now being reorganized. Mass has been held in memory of the women soldiers and others who fell defending Vilna. Anti-aircraft guns have been brought into play as part of the defense of Warsaw, as the Bolsheviks are now using airplanes frequently in their northern drive. Many civilian organizations are being given parts in the plans for defending the city, some of them being assigned to guard the bridges over the Vistula.

YOUTH DIES AFTER BEING KEPT ALIVE A DAY BY PULMONOT

Oxygen and Air Used in Effort to Restore Respiration, Stopped by Operation.

Robert Stanbury, 16 years old, of 8315 Vulture street, died in the city hospital at 3:45 this afternoon, after his heart had continued to beat for 23 hours after natural respiration had ceased. Artificial respiration was maintained during all that time by a hand pulmotor operated by hospital physicians.

The period of artificial respiration was the longest in the hospital records. It was ended only when the beating of the heart stopped.

Stanbury was taken to the hospital Tuesday, for an operation for mastoiditis. This is a disease in which foreign matter forms behind the ear. An operation for the removal of this matter was performed at 3:30 p. m. yesterday, after respiration ceased a half hour later.

The physicians have not determined whether breathing was stopped by the effects of the anesthetic or by a blood clot or other pressure on the brain or the spinal column.

The hand pulmotor is like a tire pump, and conveys air or oxygen directly into the lungs through a tube. Oxygen was used until 7 o'clock last night and air thereafter.

In numbers, Georgia's population increase was 284,480, the smallest numerical increase since the decade ending with 1870 and a little more than two-thirds as large as the increase 10 years ago.

JOHNSON, NOTED DRY CAMPAIGNER, IN CITY TO SPEAK

Man Who "Gave an Eye to Make England Dry" Will Talk at Third Baptist Church Tonight.

HE SMOKES AND HAS JOVIAL PERSONALITY

Prohibition Law Effective in U. S., He Says, After 12,000-Mile Trip; Predicts Dry England in 10 Years.

William E. (Pussfoot) Johnson, noted prohibition campaigner, who "gave an eye to make England dry," arrived in St. Louis this morning from Memphis, and will speak tonight in the Third Baptist Church, Grand and Washington avenues, on the worldwide prohibition movement.

Johnson's home is in Westerville, O., headquarters of the Anti-Saloon League. On his present tour of the United States, he is billed under the nickname which he won by his night raids on bootleggers in the Indian Territory, and which became known internationally when his right eye was destroyed in a mob demonstration in London last winter. A glass eye has taken its place.

Johnson, in appearance, is the opposite of the familiar cartoon representation of the dry advocate. He is round and jovial, and he smokes cigars and occasionally cigarettes. He was puffing a "fat" cigar, when the London students rode him on an army stretcher—not a rail, as has been related—just before the missile was thrown which smashed his eyeball.

"I think the man who threw that missile was a drinking man," Johnson commented, in speaking of the occurrence. "He was too efficient."

At Anti-Saloon League headquarters, 302 Victoria building, he told a Post-Dispatch reporter today of his observations since his return to Central Europe, and of conditions in England. He predicted that England would be dry in 10 years, and added that the British Isles, Scandinavia and the new nations of Central Europe would be prohibited in 1910. The same is true of France as to distilled spirits, he said, but not as to wine.

Situation in France. He said the French dealers in petrol, or gasoline, had combined with the makers of distilled spirits to keep the Government from converting to commercial use the large quantities of distilled liquor commandeered during the war. But for this combination, he said, a "bloc" of 60 dry members in the Chamber of Deputies would have succeeded, before this time, in outlawing distilled spirits in France. The wine makers of the south, he said, have not allied themselves with the distilled spirit interests of the north, as the manufacturers of wine and beer in this country allied themselves with the whisky interest.

Says Law Is Effective.

"In this country," Johnson said, "I have traveled 12,000 miles thus far and I have seen only two intoxicated persons. The lid is tipped in some places, but it is down tight in the vast majority of places. A pint bottle of whisky makes a bigger noise now than a trainload used to make. The enforcement of the dry law has been effective beyond what we had expected."

"By the way, has anyone noticed that the papers are not reporting cases of sunstroke this summer? Formerly every July and August had their crops of sunstroke. In cities, beer drinking is the greatest cause of sunstroke. Beer makes flabby people, affecting the liver and kidneys especially. In England, beer has caused cirrhosis of the liver, the national disease. Because of the quantity of beer drunk, I think it does more harm than whisky."

Dry World This Century. "When I am asked how long it will be before the world will go dry, I am reminded that the world is a pretty big place. But the last century was not."

GIRL IS SLAIN AT CHURCH DOOR BY SON OF BANKER

Kansas Student Shot When Going to Mass by Rejected Suitor Who Later Tries to Kill Self.

YOUTH WAITS HOUR AT CHURCH ENTRANCE

Says Girl Broke Engagement to Wed a Year Ago—Warrant for Murder Issued Against Him.

By the Associated Press. WICHITA, Kan., Aug. 2.—Miss Carrie Cunningham, a student of Fairmount College, was shot and fatally wounded here yesterday as she was about to enter St. Mary's Cathedral to attend mass. Theodore Osweller Jr., cashier of the Shulte State Bank of Shulte, Kan., a former sweetheart of the girl, was questioned by County Attorney James A. Conley and today a warrant charging first degree murder was issued against him.

E. E. Fitzpatrick, Deputy State Fire Marshal, who took Osweller into custody, said that the young man tried to kill himself soon after the shooting. At the office of the County Attorney, it was stated that, following the receipt of many reports that Osweller had been acting queerly lately, an investigation would be made of his sanity.

The bullet entered the girl's shoulder above the heart. She died last night.

For more than an hour, during services at the church, Osweller waited around the entrance to the cathedral. As Miss Cunningham approached, accompanied by her mother and sister, Osweller edged through the crowd of parishioners, his hand in his right coat pocket and fired through his coat. The girl fell in the doorway of the cathedral. Osweller made no effort to escape.

In a statement made to the Post-Dispatch Attorney Osweller said he had been courting Miss Cunningham two years and that she had broken the engagement a year ago.

Osweller is the son of Theodore Osweller, a wealthy banker of Andale, Kan., who has served three terms in the Kansas Legislature.

MAYOR'S SON ACQUITTED OF AUTO SPEEDING CHARGE

Jury Deliberates Only Five Minutes—Was Arrested by Auto Club President.

Elmer Kiel, son of the Mayor, was acquitted today of a charge of automobile speeding by a Police Court jury of six men. The jury deliberated five minutes. Kiel was arrested Thursday afternoon by John A. Bruner, president of the St. Louis Automobile Club and a member of the Vigilance Committee organized to help enforce traffic laws, when he was driving along Pine street, from Jefferson to Grand avenues.

Bruner testified that Kiel was running his car at about 30 miles an hour. E. W. Bentley, who was riding with Bruner, said he believed Kiel was driving 28 to 30 miles an hour.

Kiel testified that at no time during the chase was he driving at a speed greater than 20 miles an hour, and that most of the time he was going at about 18 miles. Edgar Mayer, who was riding with him, said the same. Kiel said he was convicted about three years ago of ignoring a traffic policeman's signal.

Christening on Girder 14 Stories Up. By the Associated Press. NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 2.—Fourteen stories from the street, on a slender girder of steel, Ole Peterson, structural iron worker, held his 5-month-old son at noon today, while the Rev. William Reese performed a christening ceremony. Fifty members of Iron Workers' Union No. 88 were named godfathers. They occupied positions on nearby girders. Below the christening party there were no floors and through the network of steel could be glimpsed the concrete basement. The baby apparently was bored.

PRINCIPAL FIGHT HERE ON SLATE OF COURTHOUSE 'RING'

Nominations for U. S. Senate, Governorship and Other State Officers Will Be Decided.

FEW CONTESTS IN DEMOCRATIC RANKS

Banks and Municipal Offices and Most of the Local Courts Will Be Closed for the Day.

Polling places throughout the city will open at 6 a. m. tomorrow for the primary, which is to determine party nominations for the United States Senate and House of Representatives, the Governorship and State offices, State Senate and House, and a list of offices including three Judges of the Circuit Court, one Judge of the Court of Appeals, one Judge of the Court of Criminal Correction, Sheriff, Public Administrator and City Treasurer. Party committees are elected in the primary. The polls will close at 7 p. m.

Banks and municipal offices are to close for the day, as well as most of the local courts.

The principal local contest is between the three candidates of the "Courthouse ring" of city committeemen, for the Republican nomination for Circuit Judgeships, and the three candidates of the "anti-ring" of the Republican lawyers polled by the St. Louis Bar Association.

Candidates for Judgeships.

The candidates of the Goldstein-Woodring ring of court clerks and allied committeemen are William H. Killoren, Judge Karl Kimmel and E. G. Oesing. The candidates endorsed by the Bar Association are Judge George H. Shields and J. Hugo Grimm, and Claude O. Pearcey. There are five other Republican candidates for Circuit Judgeships.

Candidates who are allied with the "Courthouse ring" and are receiving its support, are Charles H. Dues for Judge of the Court of Appeals, Judge Chauncey Krueger for the Court of Criminal Correction, John Scholl for Sheriff, Frank M. Slater for Public Administrator and Anton Schuler for City Treasurer.

In the Bar Association poll, Judge George D. Reynolds was endorsed for re-nomination on the Republican ticket to the Court of Appeals, and William Matfitt Bates was endorsed for Judge of the Court of Criminal Correction.

"Ring" Opposed by Koenig. The "Courthouse ring" candidates are being opposed by the Association of Missouri Republicans, known as house-cleaners, who are opposing the continuance of Jacob L. Babler as national committeeman. They have sent out a sample ballot, on which the "ring" candidates are scratched, and on which the Bar Association candidates for judicial positions are endorsed.

Edmond Koenig, City Collector, is the chief active politician who is opposing the "ring" slate. He is supporting, particularly, John W. Dunn for City Treasurer, Charles E. Mohrstadt for Sheriff, and Otto A. Hampe for Public Administrator, besides the Bar Association judicial candidates.

Democratic Primary.

In comparison with the Republican contests, the Democratic local nominations are attracting little attention. The only Democratic local contests are for committeemen in seven wards, and for the nomination for Public Administrator, James F. Newell, now Attorney General.

During the primary, T. J. Dooley, an insurance agent. However, the Democratic contests for the senatorship and governorship have aroused much local interest.

It is believed most Democrats will vote their party ticket, and will not attempt to help in determining the Republican nominations. Each voter may vote either ticket he provides that he may be challenged as to his intention to vote the party ticket at the election, but this is an ineffective provision, as there is no legal penalty for changing one's mind.

For the Democratic nomination for Judge of the Court of Appeals, Hick-

Courthouse Ring's Judicial Slate, and the Anti-Ring Selections

THE principal local contest at tomorrow's primaries will be between the three Republican candidates of the "Courthouse ring" of city committeemen for Republican nomination for Judges of the Circuit Court and the three candidates endorsed by a majority of Republican lawyers polled by the St. Louis Bar Association. The "Courthouse ring" and the Republican lawyers also have opposing candidates for nomination for Judge of the St. Louis Court of Appeals and for Judge of the Court of Criminal Correction.

City Collector Koenig is opposing the "Courthouse ring" slate and urging the election of the candidates recommended by Republican lawyers. The "ring" and "anti-ring" candidates are:

COURTHOUSE RING SLATE.	REPUBLICAN LAWYERS' SELECTIONS.
For Circuit Judges— William H. Killoren. Karl Kimmel. Erwin G. Oesing.	For Circuit Judges— George H. Shields. J. Hugo Grimm. Claude O. Pearcey.

U. R. FORCES ATTACK OLIVE LINE AND BREAK IT IN PIECES

United Railways forces attacked the Olive street line this morning and broke through at Twelfth street and pressed eastward. Heavy machinery led the advance, grapping the rails with hooks of steel and ripping them up and breaking them into short lengths. Considerable Olive street came up with the rails. What with broken rails and paving blocks, an upheaved trail of debris was left by the engine of destruction. Crowds of civilians watched the advance.

The purpose of the United Railways high command is to replace the old Olive line downtown with a new line. During the first stage of the operation eastbound traffic is routed over Pine street from Twelfth to Fourth. During the latter phase westbound traffic will be routed over Pine from Fourth to Thirteenth street. The new line is expected to be consolidated in about 10 days.

3800 Strikers at 11 Places

Obeys Order to Resume Work and Others Will Vote Tonight on Returning Tomorrow—Situation Declared Favorable.

POLICE INVESTIGATION OF DELIVERIES STOPS

Restrictions on Nonessential Industries Removed and Distribution of Fuel Is Left to Judgment of Railroad.

At least 11 coal mines in the fields adjacent to St. Louis, including some of the largest mines, resumed operations today, when the "day men," who struck 11 days ago for an increase of $2 a day, began to obey the orders of their officers to return to work.

"The crisis of the coal shortage here is over," said Chairman Wallace of the Coal Committee. "All restrictions imposed at the instance of the committee were removed this morning. The situation looks very favorable now."

The railroad had been delivering coal as ordered by the Coal Committee only to essential plants and public utilities since Thursday, when the committee began to function. At a meeting of the committee this morning, which lasted less than an hour, this restriction was removed and it was left to the judgment of the railroad to deliver coal to essential or nonessential establishments as they see fit, until the supply is again normal.

Robber Finds Secret Pocket; Says 'Don't Cheat Honest Man.'

Pennies Cause Holdup Man to Make Further Search, and $48 Is Discovered in Sleeve.

Two men stepped from an automobile near Taylor avenue and Lindell boulevard at 10:45 o'clock last night and while one held up Millard A. Toler, 322 South Boyle avenue, with a revolver, the second man searched his pockets. Finding only a few pennies, the searcher demanded to know the hiding place of his cash. "You're too well dressed to be going around with a few coppers in your pocket," the searcher remarked. "Well, you're doing the searching," Toler replied. "You've got all I carry."

The robber then searched Toler more closely and finally found a secret pocket in a sleeve of Toler's coat, in which Toler carried a purse and $48.

After extracting the cash the robber handed the empty purse back to Toler as he remarked: "Put that back in the kick, and next time don't be trying to cheat an honest man."

RATE INCREASES APPROVED BY STATE RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS

"Reasons for Advances in Interstate Rates Persuasive of Advances in Intrastate Tariffs," Says Report of Three Who Sat in Conference on Case.

WORK BEGUN ON READJUSTMENTS

Plan to Put in Effect by Sept. 1 Changes Which Will Net Railroads $1,500,000,000 Additional Revenue.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(By Associated Press.)—Reasons requiring an increase of interstate rates are very persuasive of the need for increase in intrastate rates," declares a report sent to various state railway commissions today by the three representatives of those commissions who met with the Interstate Commerce Commission during public hearing on the $1,500,000,000 railroad rate case.

"When all matters are considered," says the report, "and remembering that where 13 states are considering controverted questions and proposed policies, their differences of opinion must be composed or decided by the majority. We believe that the conclusion, considering all things, is just and fair and we give it our approval."

"The increased rates permitted under the ruling will probably go into effect Sept. 1, 1920. The operating revenues of the railroads under present rates and conditions are recognized by all persons as insufficient. A part of the responsibility to meet the situation rests upon the state commissions. Such increases as will be made in intrastate rates should, if possible, be made effective Sept. 1, 1920."

Participants in Conference.
The report is signed by William B. B. Alney, chairman, Public Service Commission of Pennsylvania; Roy C. Dunn of the Florida Railroad Commission; and John G. Guther of the Iowa Railroad Commission.

"We participated in the conference in the same manner as members of the commission," the report declares, "being invited by them to take part in the discussions and express our views with full freedom. The members of the commission gave to the intense and efficient application, examining and discussing it with the evident desire to reach correct conclusions and apply the increase in such manner as to deal justly with the whole country."

The questions presented were numerous, involving the commerce of the whole country, and the entire rail transportation system of the United States, many of these questions being of complex character. Any decision of the case looking to the observance of the statute affect in some way every rate now effective."

All Factors Considered.
"Speaking generally, every controverted question concerning all classes of commodities and all rates, rules and practices of rail carriers and all the theories of shippers and carriers were presented and urged in the testimony and in argument before the commission and given careful consideration in conference."

"The commissioners were not of one mind on all questions and their conclusion in many cases was the result of recognizing that the views of the other must be taken into account and that there must be some surrender by each before an agreement could be reached. In some instances the conclusion of the majority was the view expressed in the ruling. On some of the questions our views were not in full accord with the majority and in some instances we three state commissioners did not have unity of view."

Interstate Increases.
Readjustment of the whole rate structure of the nation's transportation systems was started today.

While tariff experts are working on the general rate schedules, the carriers will make application to the various state commissions for advance in intrastate rates to correspond to those in interstate rates. Requests for advances in passenger, Pullman, milk and excess baggage tariffs are expected to be the same for all states, as the increases in these charges authorized by the federal commission were general. They were 20 per cent on passenger, milk and excess baggage charges and 50 per cent on rates for sleeping and parlor car space.

In the case of freight rates, however, the carriers will ask the states to advance these tariffs to correspond with the increases granted by the federal commission for the territory in which the state is located. The interstate increases authorized are 40 per cent in Eastern territory, 25 in Southern and Mountain-Pacific territory and 35 in Western territory.

In announcing that the applications for intrastate advances would be made to the state commissions, Alfred P. Thom, general counsel of the Association of American Railroads, said these increases would not enlarge the gross income to be received by the roads under the decision of the Federal commission, because in presenting their case the carriers had based their estimates on corresponding intrastate rate advances.

Increase Placed at $1,500,000,000.
The railway executives have not calculated the total increased revenue to be derived from the rate advances, but the sum has been unofficially approximated at $1,500,000,000. The commission's decision is intended to give the roads the 6 per cent return on their aggregate value permitted by the transportation act.

Since the commission fixed the aggregate value of all the lines at $18,300,000,000, the net operating income would be approximately $1,344,000,000, as compared with the $929,000,000 standard return the roads have received during Federal control and since.

Coastwise and inland steamship companies and electric railway lines are permitted under the Interstate Commerce Commission's decision to increase only freight rates. The decision did say that the freight rate increase granted electric railway lines was "not to be construed as an expression of disapproval of increases, made or proposed in the regular manner, in the passenger fares or electric rates."

Freight Third Higher.
Under the commission's order charges on freight moving from one territory into another will be 33-1/3 per cent higher.

Creation by the commission on its own motion of the Mountain-Pacific territory was unexpected. The Western roads as a whole had joined in asking for an increase of 22-1/2 per cent, but the Northwestern lines later at the public hearing asked that they be given separate treatment and a freight increase of approximately 30 per cent. The commission did not grant this request, saying that it had been opposed by many shippers and by other carriers in the Western group.

The surcharge of 50 per cent on sleeping and parlor car space is to accrue wholly to the railroads. This charge was opposed by the Pullman company on the ground that it would reduce the travel in cars of that type. The commission held, however, that a charge of this character "has much in its favor," as "unquestionably the service is more valuable to the passenger and more expensive to the rail carriers."

RUSH TO REDEEM NOTES SIGNED BY PONZI RENEWED

Speculators Buy at a Discount Notes Held by Persons Who Find Wait Will Be Too Long.

PROMOTER DENIES HE IS INSOLVENT

Office Opened Earlier Than Usual in Expectation of Long Line—Special Police—men Care for Crowd.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—The Securities Exchange Co., headed by Charles Ponzi, whose alleged operations in foreign exchange are being investigated by United States Attorney Daniel J. Gallagher and Attorney General J. Weston Allen of Massachusetts, continued today the payment of notes to those investors who presented their claims. The line of claimants awaiting attention was a long one, extending from Pi alley through City Hall avenue to Court Square and fully equaling that of the early days of last week, when, at the request of investigating officials, Ponzi stopped taking in money from would-be depositors. Ponzi's prompt return of funds to those who asked for them had the effect toward the end of last week of greatly diminishing the number of claimants, but there was evidence today of a sudden renewal of the desire to cash the notes he had issued.

While his office was being opened, there were meetings of the principal to those whose 90-day notes had not matured, and keeping it was said, to the promise to pay 50 per cent interest on matured notes. Ponzi himself issued a statement in denial of a published article by William H. McMaister, his former publicity agent, in which McMaister expressed the belief that Ponzi was hopelessly insolvent and was paying out money to some depositors at the expense of others.

Denies He Is Insolvent.
"I have twice as much money as will be needed," said Ponzi, "to meet any obligations that may be presented to me," and added that McMaister never was in a position to learn his methods of operating his business.

Anticipating the demands, Ponzi had ordered his office opened earlier than usual and every effort made to expedite the business. Note-holders said they had experienced no difficulty in obtaining what was due them other than the inconvenience of waiting in line until their turn came.

Against Anti-Tobacco Move.
Johnson said, in answer to questions as to the future, that he supposed the millennium would come when all the present evils had been abolished, but he said he had been so used to fighting evil that he would not feel at home in a world that had been thoroughly reformed.

"A war on tobacco?" he replied to a query as to the reform work of the future. "I don't think so. I wouldn't be interested in it, for I use tobacco, and a good many of our anti-alcohol workers use it. None of them drinks, so far as I know, but we have had lots of support from drinking people. A drunkard has better reason to vote dry than anyone else has."

Going to Scotland Next.
Johnson goes from here to Kansas City, and will fill a list of Chautauque engagements before sailing in September for Scotland. An election on the prohibition question, of the nature of a local option proposal, is to be held in November throughout Scotland, Johnson predicts that most of Scotland, and suburbs of the cities, will be voted dry. City wards in Glasgow and Edinburgh, with about 25,000 inhabitants to a ward, vote separately, and he hopes to see some of these city wards vote dry.

Russia is dry at present, Johnson said, in the parts controlled by the Red Army, because the Bolsheviks have found that the sale of vodka makes the population industrially unreliable and politically uncontrollable.

Costa Rica Recognized by U. S.
By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Recognition of the Government of Costa Rica by the United States was announced today at the State Department.

Attorney-General Allen issued a statement today in which he said that Ponzi could very easily furnish the means for determining without delay the truth of his statements about his business, but that at a recent conference at the Statehouse he declined to give the information.

"Mr. Ponzi in his statement in this office," Mr. Allen said, "did not claim that coupons had been purchased from the postoffice in such small quantities as could be brought over the counter but he claimed he had agents in Europe in a position to buy those coupons in any amount desired from officials connected with foreign Governments through arrangements or agreements which have been made by his representatives with the officials. As a result of this, he claims his agents are in a position to obtain the reply coupons from countries where the value of the currency has depreciated in sufficient quantities to make all amounts that have been deposited with him and that his agents in other countries where the exchange rate is substantially normal redeem coupons, through officials of those Governments who have agreements with his representatives."

Refuses to Name Agents.
"Mr. Ponzi, if he saw fit, could very easily furnish a means of determining, without delay, the fullest truth to establish whether he has been conducting negotiations on a large scale in the purchase and redemption of these coupons. Up to the present he refuses to disclose through whom the business has been conducted, either in New York or Europe. He further stated to me that he had been in correspondence with officials in Europe, but had destroyed the correspondence, at least in part. He says his papers are deposited in a number of safe-deposit vaults."

Allen said he had not yet been able to ascertain whether any institutions dealing in foreign exchange have been representing Ponzi in New York.

During the afternoon McMaister, Ponzi's publicity agent, was called into conference at the Federal Building, with Assistant United States Attorney Shera. Postoffice Inspector Mosby and the auditor who is working on the books of the Securities Exchange Co.

Rush of Investors at Ponzi Branch Office at Woonsocket, R. I.
By the Associated Press.

Woonsocket, R. I., Aug. 2.—Investors in the Securities Exchange Co. of Boston engaged in a frenzied rush on the office of Adelaire Forcier, agent in this city after the arrival of a Boston newspaper extra containing an article regarding the operations of Charles Ponzi, head of the company.

Men and women in the line, clutching the newspaper, demanded the return of their money. The requests were met where matured notes were involved, but other investors were told that returns on unmatured certificates would be made from Boston tomorrow.

to work in the forenoon. There were about 4500 in these districts who did not return. At Edwardsville about 1800 went to work and about 2500 stayed away, while at Belleville about 2000 resumed their labor and as many more remained on strike.

The mines of the Edwardsville district which reopened are Donk No. 2, Maryville; Donk No. 4, Edwardsville; Donk No. 2, Collinsville; Lumaghi at Stanton, and Consolidated No. 17, Collinsville. Those at Belleville and nearby are the Radium, New National, Shiloh, Summit, Eldon and Pullerton.

The combined daily production of the five mines near Edwardsville is about 9500 tons, most of which is destined for local consumption. This amounts to between 180 and 240 cars a day, depending on the size of the strike. The production figures of the six Belleville mines were not available, but it is possible their combined output is about 10,000 tons.

The estimated consumption of the essential plants of St. Louis, not including the waterworks, made by the city, is about 100,000 tons a day, or 35 cars a day.

It has been estimated that 21,000 miners altogether are employed in the mines of St. Clair, Madison and Newton counties, Illinois.

Men Return Without Taking Vote.
The 1800 miners known to have returned to work near Edwardsville are distributed as follows: Donk No. 2, 600; Donk No. 4, 125; Lumaghi No. 2, 450; Lumaghi, Stanton, 300; Consolidated No. 17, 400. The 125 miners at Donk No. 4 represent about half of the miners ordinarily employed at the Edwardsville mines.

J. FRANK HANLY KILLED BY TRAIN WHEN IN AUTO

Former Indiana Governor and Host and Wife Lose Lives Near Dennison, O.

By the Associated Press.

DENNISON, O., Aug. 2.—J. Frank Hanly, former Governor of Indiana and prohibition party candidate for the presidency in 1916, was almost instantly killed early yesterday when an automobile in which he was riding was struck by a Pennsylvania Railroad freight train, six miles from here, on the new Philadelphia road.

Dr. and Mrs. C. H. G. Baker of Kilgore, O., who were driving Mr. Hanly to their home, also were killed. The Baker automobile was driven across the railroad tracks back of one freight train in front of another.

Mr. Hanly was en route to Carrollton, where he was to have delivered an address today.

Hanly Won Governorship From Kern in Dry Fight.
By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—The prohibition party lost one of its greatest leaders in the death at Dennison, O., of J. Frank Hanly, former Governor of Indiana, Virgil G. Hinshaw, chairman of the Prohibition National Committee, said when informed of the fatal accident.

"Mr. Hanly made his first big fight for prohibition 16 years ago, when he was elected Governor of Indiana on a county option platform, in opposition to John W. Kern," said Hinshaw.

Hanly Served in Congress and Had Record of National Plurality.
By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 2.—Former Gov. J. Frank Hanly was born April 4, 1861, in a log cabin in Champaign County, Ill. He worked his way through the Eastern Illinois Normal School. He began the practice of law at Williamsport, Ind., in 1882. A year later he was elected to the Indiana State Senate. In 1894 he was elected to Congress by a good majority. In 1897 he was a candidate for the United States Senate on the Republican ticket against Senator Albert Beveridge, but lost the nomination in the Republican caucus by a few votes.

He was elected Governor in 1904 on the Republican ticket by almost 5,000 plurality, the largest ever given to a gubernatorial candidate by either party in Indiana.

In 1916 he was the unsuccessful candidate of the prohibition party for the presidency. He was active in prohibition fights in Ohio and in various parts of the country where attempts were made to have the present prohibition law declared unconstitutional.

There, those who returned this morning did so without having held a meeting or taken a vote.

In the fields centering around Edwardsville there are about 2500 miners who have not resumed work. Some of them have voted to return soon, while many others are expected to vote today to return. There are about 2500 miners employed by mines at Stanton and Wilson, Macoupin County, and Livingston and Madison County, who will vote today.

Farrington Expects Most of Miners to Return Today.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 2.—Seventy-five per cent of the Illinois striking miners will be back at work today, according to the opinion expressed last night by President Frank Farrington of the Illinois Miners' Union. The other 25 per cent, he said, will return by Wednesday.

The first day of work will be devoted to putting the mines in order after the strike so that actual hoisting of coal will be delayed in nearly all mines until Tuesday.

Both miners' officials and operators look for more life at the mines tomorrow, and a return to normal production about Friday. The strike, the operators said, has improved the car shortage situation, and nearly all mines are well supplied.

SAM LOFTIS.

WOMAN HELD ONLY AS A

Chicago Chief of Police so Announces After Her Denial Jewelry Man Was Struck With Bottle.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Samuel Woods, 35-year-old hotel keeper, who was the only guest of Samuel T. A. Loftis in his apartment when the millionaire diamond merchant met death Friday night, is being held "merely" as a material witness and apparently was in no way responsible for the death of Loftis. Chief of Police Garrity declared last night after a 48-hour investigation during which Miss Woods and a score of other persons were questioned.

Miss Woods steadfastly denied that she or anyone else had hit Loftis with a whisky bottle, fragments of which were found near his body. The statement of the coroner's physician that Loftis' skull was fractured and that a cerebral hemorrhage had caused his death led her to believe that the hemorrhage might have been caused by a blow from some dull instrument.

Miss Woods yesterday admitted that she had been drinking with Loftis and his wife, and that she had seen him when he died. She said Loftis forced it and the jewelry on her, but she returned the money, which he put in his pocket, and afterward placing it in the dresser. She took it from the dresser, she said.

COMMUNISM DUE TO LICENTIOUS HABITS, PAPAL LETTER SAYS

"It Arose After Diminution of Conjugal Fidelity, as Result of War."

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Aug. 2.—Evil conditions confronting the world today are outlined in a circular letter issued to the church by Pope Benedict Saturday. The purpose of this letter is to proclaim throughout the world the twentieth anniversary of the decree by which St. Joseph was named patron of the Universal Church, and in it the pontiff urges the Catholics to celebrate for a whole year from December next solemn functions in honor of the Saint.

"At the end of the war came," says the letter, "the minds of men, astray by military passion, were exasperated by the length and bitterness of the conflict, and aggravated by respect for constituted authority. Licentious habits followed, even among young women, and there arose the fatal doctrine of communism, with the absolute destruction of dutiful relations between nations and between fathers and children. Terrible consequences ensuing have already been experienced."

COX TO KEEP HANDS OFF TEXAS

By the Associated Press.
DAYTON, O., Aug. 2.—A policy of noninterference in State Democratic primaries was announced today by Gov. Cox, the democratic presidential candidate. He stated that he had been asked to take a stand in the Texas primary fight, in which former Senator Bailey is involved, and had refused.

"It is neither my province nor my desire," said a statement by the Governor, "to interfere in any way with the Texas situation. It is a matter for the Democrats of the State. That has been my attitude from the outset."

NAMED AFTER VEGETABLES

Ancient Rome honored vegetables so highly that it named some of its greatest families after them.

Fabius was but General Bean; Cicero was Vice-Chancellor Pea; and the house of Lentulus took its appellation from the slow-growing Lentil.

Those who have enjoyed the succulent green vegetables served at CHILDS will agree that the honor was well deserved.

CLOTHING MAKERS CHARGED WITH PLOT TO INCREASE PRICES

Jobbers Also Said to Figure on Plan to "Stimulate Retailers to Extraneous Demand."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Howard E. Figg, special assistant to the Attorney-General in the enforcement of the Lever law against profiteering, charged today that manufacturers and jobbers of wearing apparel were attempting through carefully prepared propaganda "to stimulate retailers and the public into a renewed fictitious demand" for clothing and thereby force prices higher.

"The Department of Justice," said Figg, "is fully advised of the several phases of this carefully planned campaign and it only remains to fix personal responsibility before applying the criminal provisions of the Lever law."

In a formal statement, Figg charged that the manufacturers and jobbers were circulating propaganda
"similar to that used to mulct the public during the recent speculative boom."

"This speculative market," Figg
continued, "coupled by its own weight last spring when the public refused to or could not buy at the unreasonable prices asked for wearing apparel."

"Manufacturers and jobbers are even going to the length of 'guaranteeing' the retail trade against a declining market," Figg said. "These 'guarantees' are being given very generally and seemingly in furtherance of a concerted plan, despite the warning of the Lever law fixing severe penalties for conspiracy to exact excessive prices for any necessaries."

Figg called attention to instances where mills have been closed for the reason, he charged, of justifying market conditions on the plea of under-production.

MAN AND SON MISSING AFTER CLOSED AUTO GOES INTO RIVER

St. Joseph (Mo.) Surgeon and Child
Believed to Have Been Drowned
Near Bean Lake, Mo.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
ATCHISON, Kan., Aug. 2.—Several Atchison rivermen and residents of the vicinity of Bean Lake, Mo., today are searching for the motor car believed to contain the bodies of Dr. Louis J. Dandurant of St.
Joseph, Mo., and his son, Louis Jr., 7 years old, who were drowned in the Missouri River last night. The Dandurant incident occurred about 20 feet down an embankment into the river at a point where the river had cut into the road. A new road had been made through a field but Dr.
Dandurant took the old road, not realizing the peril. In the car also were Mrs. Dandurant and their baby and Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Stowe of St.
Joseph.

All the occupants of the car except Dandurant and his son swam to safety. Mrs. Dandurant, holding her baby in her arms, sank once, then rose to the surface and seized an overhanging limb and was dragged to safety by Stowe, after he had rescued his wife. All those rescued were cut and otherwise injured and it is believed Dr. Dandurant and his son were stunned and were unable to extricate themselves.
The surviving members of the party were taken to St. Joseph last night.
Dr. Dandurant was a native of St.
Joseph and had been a surgeon there for 15 years.

DEBS OPPOSES ANY MOVE
TO FREE HIM FROM PRISON

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Eugene V. Debs, Socialist candidate for President, has put his foot down on the movement started by friends to obtain his release from the Federal prison.

Writing from the Atlanta penitentiary, Debs declares that so long as his comrades "are held criminals and convicts," his place is here.
The letter, sent to Mrs. Lucy Robins, secretary of the Central Labor Bodies' Conference in New York, and made public here today, said:
"Please say to the comrades in
New York that while I appreciate fully all that has been done in my behalf, I object emphatically to any further appeal being made for me only to President Wilson. I wish no special consideration and I wish to fare no better than my comrades.
As long as they are held criminals and convicts, my place is here. My comrades will therefore understand that they can serve me best by bringing their influence to bear in behalf of all."

PLEA OF STOCKHOLDERS FAILS

Six purchasers of stock in the Hargadine-McKittick Dry Goods Co.
today filed a motion with Judge Ga-resche, asking him to order the officers of the company to formally transfer to them on the company's books 5734 shares of stock which they had bought. The petition said officers of the company had refused to authorize the transfer on the ground that the company is now in the hands of trustees and the officers have no power.

Judge Garesche refused to entertain the motion for the reason that suits are pending in the State Supreme Court to restrain him from issuing any further orders in connection with the McKittick company. The petitioners were C. J.

Zeitlinger, Bernard Hellinger, Mrs.
M. M. Meyers, A. W. Grossheiter,
Noel Poepping and Edward S. Lewis.

take the "guess" out of August Fur Buying

Authorities differ in their opinions regarding the Fur situation. Some predict higher prices; others, that prices will remain stable.

We claim no prophetic vision—nor is there any occasion for you or ourselves to "guess." We've a plan that takes the "guess" out of August fur buying.

Simply this—

A written record will be kept of every Fur sold during August. Should the same piece be secured for selling at a lower price prior to December First, we will rebate the difference to you.

Thus you are protected against a decline—and, by buying now, against an advance later.

AUTO THAT ROBBERS USED FOUND WRECK

Machine Thought to Have been Used in Six Holdups in Ditch in County.

An automobile answering the description of one which figured several highway robberies Saturday night was found yesterday morning overturned and wrecked in a ditch at Pennsylvania and Bruno avenues, St. Louis County, with stains indicating that one or more of the robbers had been injured. It was identified as the property of the Es-sior Automobile Service Co., North Cardinal avenue, and been reported stolen from a garage at 1:30 a. m. Sunday, after the last of a series of hold-ups in which six men participated.
The police were informed that at 9 o'clock Saturday night a man said he was H. M. Morgan, superintendent of the warehouse, phoned to the automobile company and asked that a sevenseater automobile be sent to Blair avenue. He said that he needed the services of Merrell Shall.

Chaufeur Reports Robbery
Marshall, who is 22 years old, resides at 3727B Lucky street,
chauffeur employed by the company, was sent to the address given, was not heard from until Saturday night, when he phoned to the garage that he had held him up and had taken car away at Olive and Denny St. Louis County. He was to commission a passing automabile and report at the garage.
Marshall failed to appear at the garage and the theft of the automobile was reported to the police,
warehouse superintendent, questioned, said that he had been away from the warehouse Friday night, and that he did know Marshall. Mrs. Mary V. residing at the Blair avenue address, from which the order for the automobile was given, had been said that she knew nothing about the matter, and had seen nothing automobile party near her home.

The first holdup was in the drink saloon of Albert Hobbs, Manchester avenue, at 10 p. m.
when six men stepped from an automobile and robbed the property and three customers of $72.
p. m. six men in an automa-
bile drove to the beverage saloon
Charles Milkowski, 5435
Broadway, and took $200 from Kowski and 14 customers. Between 10 p. m. and midnight several highway robberies on St. Louis County roads were reported to the police at Clayton. In one of the ups, it was reported, shots were fired by the robbers.

Shots and Screams Heard
The automobile was found
George H. Skillman of Rich-Heights had telephoned to the police office at Clayton that a man and woman were held up in an automobile near Bruno and Penney avenues. Skillman said that he heard eight or ten shots fired also heard the woman scream for help.

Several residents of Rich-Heights reported that when they their homes to investigate they they were halted near Bruno Pennsylvania avenues by six wearing handkerchief masks, flourished revolvers and
them to "get back home."

The county authorities that after the automobile at the highwaymen boarded a wood street car, a half mile the scene of the accident, and St. Louis.

Opera Receipts, $139,732; Appraisal of Season From Artistic Point of View

Expenses Are $125,000 and Surplus of $14,000 Is Expected by Management—Mayor Speaks at Last Performance.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

WITH the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" by the Municipal Theater company and with the huge audience standing to shout a spontaneous cheer, the second season of summer entertainment at the opera theater in Forest Park came to an end last night. A sixth performance of the musical comedy, "Katinka," had been given in lieu of the projected and then abandoned grand opera concert, and Mayor Kiel, president of the Municipal Theater Association, had announced the season's gate receipts as $139,732.50, the estimated expense as $125,000, and the approximate surplus as $14,000.

At the end of the second act the company remained on the stage, while Mayor Kiel marched on at the head of a file of officers, directors and paid employees of the association. The Mayor, in a speech, contrasted this year's statistics of income and attendance with those of last year. The attendance this year, he said, was 204,000, as against less than 87,000 last year. The total receipts in 1919 were approximately $65,000, he said, leaving a deficit of $14,000—virtually equal to the 1920 surplus.

After stating that this year's performances might not have been quite perfect, and alluding vaguely to "improvements" for next season, Mayor Kiel proceeded to distribute praise to those who, in his opinion, were responsible for the success of the undertaking. Musical Director Bendix was complimented with a perfunctory compliment, Stage Director Sinclair fared slightly better, as did also his assistant, Ralph Nichols, and chor-master William Parsons was touched upon in passing as "Mr. Bendix's able assistant." Not one of the principals of the cast was mentioned except Comedian Raymond Crane, and that merely in reference to his complaint that his name was omitted from the "Katinka" programs.

Not Pleased With the Press.

A few words of thanks were bestowed upon the newspapers, the Mayor adding: "We cannot say that we have been pleased by much that has appeared in the press. But we have decided that it was all for the best, and probably resulted in improved performances."

The Mayor then turned to the row of some 22 officers, directors and paid employees, among whom, curiously enough, were not present the dancing teachers without remuneration, trained the children's ballets presented in two of the productions. No mention was made of the troupe of St. Louis juvenile actors and dancers whose performance in "Bahama" in "Toyland" and "Katinka" is pleasantly remembered.

The Mayor introduced his retinue one by one, telling of the services of each to the enterprise, mentioning the business in which each is engaged, and even, in some instances, recommending to the public the wares vended by the merchants in question.

Almost exclusive credit was laid by the Mayor upon the financial aspect of the season. As to the general triumph of the undertaking, he referred the audience to testimonials from about a dozen commercial, business and floral companies, who, the speaker declared, were unanimously of the opinion that the enterprise had in every way proved an epochal achievement.

Favored by Miraculous Weather.

The speaker omitted to give credit to the factor which was no doubt the largest single element in the financial success of the season, namely, providential weather. During 48 evenings there was not a single postponement on account of rain; only one performance was stopped by showers, and then it was toward the end; and not a single rain check had to be honored.

As the artistic phase of the season was not stressed last night, a brief summary of the undertaking from this point of view may not be unwelcome. The writer believes all competent judges will agree that the one and only offering of the season which, considering merit of the work and excellence of production and performance, could justly receive the high praise of artistic, was "The Mikado."

Superior to "The Mikado" in intrinsic value is "The Gondoliers," in which Sir Arthur Sullivan's music is an inspiration from the first note to the last, and upon which W. S. Gilbert lavished his most pungent and masterly satire. But the performance of "The Gondoliers" remained amateurish to the final night, partly on account of insufficient time for preparation, partly because of inadequacies of cast.

As to the remainder of the repertory, it may be remarked that this season witnessed musical comedy's first invasion of the field of community drama, which was initiated by the memorable Pageant and Masque of St. Louis, and of the opera theater which was christened with Margaret Anglin's exquisite production of "As You Like It." "The Firefly," the musical comedy with which the season opened, sometimes verges upon operetta, but it "Katinka" is educational, then the commercial theaters of the city have a right to apply for exemption from the war tax every time they present a musical comedy.

Other Works Presented.

"Robin Hood," in the words of Impresario David E. Russell to the writer, is "the worst light opera ever written," and was put on for box office reasons. "A Waltz Dream" combines delightful music with a plot so imbedded in a puritan situation that no pruning of the text could cleanse it. "The Mascot," an old-fashioned French operetta, proved, with the exception of two or three numbers, incredibly fatuous, both in music and text. The massacre of the innocents perpetrated upon Victor Herbert's "Babes in Toyland" will not soon be forgotten.

Concerning the cast, candor compels the statement that the only role in which the prima donna, Miss Pavloska, proved of distinctive value to the company was that of Yum Yum in "The Mikado," although her Tony in "The Firefly" was charming, and her Katinka had good points. Her Yum Yum is a uniquely artistic creation, probably without its equal—a fact due in part to her good fortune in having many times played Suzuki to Mme. Tamaki Miura's Cio-Cio-San in "Madame Butterfly." Miss Pavloska is a mezzo-soprano; in consequence a soprano, Miss Bussert, had to be summoned to sing the music of Maud Marian in "Robin Hood," while the tessitura of "Katinka" was painfully high for Miss Pavloska's range.

Charles E. Gallagher suffered severely from miscasting, having only two parts really fitted to his abilities—Pooch-Bah in "The Mikado" and the Grand Inquisitor in "The Gondoliers." In three works this grand opera basso had only speaking parts.

Cast Quantitatively Selected. Warren Proctor, the tenor, has a beautiful voice, admirably cultivated, but scarcely robust enough for the open-air theater. If he can sing a resonant high note, he failed to do so throughout the season. In parts in which he had had previous experience he was excellent. His Nanki-Poo in "The Mikado" was well-nigh ideal, and much praise is due his Marco in "The Gondoliers." He was sometimes degraded to strange employments—such as the burlesque detective of "Babes in Toyland." Bernard Ferguson, the baritone, is another singer with a fine and well-trained voice, but his experience in acting has been meager. His best part was Fish Tush in "The Mikado." Neither Proctor nor Ferguson can dance—a fact which had calamitous results in "A Waltz Dream." Neither is Miss Pavloska a dancer.

In fact, the cast was wearily selected, in view of the task in hand. For a season predominantly of light opera, there were chosen three grand opera singers, Miss Pavloska, Proctor and Gallagher; a contingent from musical comedy, Crane, Eva Olivetti and Lillian Crossman; and a knockout comedian in Harry Hermosen. Mildred Rogers, who had much experience in light opera, is intelligent enough to fit competently into any role assigned to her. Ferguson has been mostly a concert and oratorio singer.

Crane, who proved the most popular member of the cast, is an unusually clever musical comedy entertainer, with a knack for falling on his back at the right moment and letting his legs telescope under him, and also with a penchant for smutty gags. When the personality of Raymond Crane was suited to the role—as in Jenkins of "The Firefly" and Hopper in "Katinka," he was very successful. But he was lost in characters in which he was required to submerge himself—such as Ko-Ko in "The Mikado" and Giuseppe in "The Gondoliers."

Value of Max Bendix. In Max Bendix, the musical director, the management was so fortunate as to obtain an expert musician of inflexible standards, a man trained in the lofty school of Theodore Thomas. During his stay in St. Louis he laid down a program which the Municipal Theater Association must follow if it is to be more than an entertainment enterprise. His ideas, strangely enough, were not only not followed, but were resented. An example of his eminent value to the organization was shown in "The Gondoliers," which would certainly have been a debacle had not the director known it so thoroughly that he could conduct the music and at the same time prompt the players in their lines.

With Bendix, Charles Sinclair was responsible for such merits as the production possessed, both working against the most formidable difficulties of time and material. It is to be doubted whether any other two men could have done better with the resources at hand. In addition to training the chorus in the action, Sinclair had charge of the setting. His scenery for "The Mikado" was the most beautiful artificial settings as yet seen at the open-air theater, and that for "Babes in Toyland" the most ornate. At the beginning of the season, as in "Robin Hood," he showed some disposition to utilize the entire natural stage; later he seemed to come to regard the theater as a sort of imperfect Hippodrome stage, lamentably deficient in such apparatus as a pool, flies and drops. His technique, with a few exceptions, was that of an indoor rather than an outdoor theater.

Chorus and Orchestra. The chorus was chosen according to musical comedy standards, and was far from being a singing organization. It is to be doubted whether more than 12 out of the 72 could find employment with a good light opera organization. The orchestra, too, was notably inferior to that of last year. Out of 50 musicians, 19 were Symphony Orchestra players; probably 40 per cent of the orchestra was virtually useless. In the first place, the information is, the rate of pay was cut about $10 a week under that of last year; while there was delay in engaging the men until after many of the symphony players had obtained out-of-town engagements.

Finally, we come to a train of incidents which make the question longer whether the Municipal Theater is to become the summer Bayreuth of America, but whether it can be saved next year from becoming an open-air Columbia Theater. The reference is to the latest in musical comedy, the intrusion of jazz intermezzi between the acts of "Robin Hood," the injection of a ragtime song and dance skit into "A Waltz Dream" and the mutilation of "Babes in Toyland" and its conversion into a revue and vaudeville show. These things have been rightly regarded as a sinister omen for the future of the Municipal Theater.

A Personal Word to the Republicans of St. Louis and Vicinity

I want your support in the primary election tomorrow. I have made no campaign in St. Louis. You St. Louisans know my record of sixteen years' service in park, play-ground and civic work; my war service in the 36th Division; my standing and reputation in this city and State. I have no money and I am not running for it. If they deserve your support, I ask you not only to vote for me on Tuesday, but also to urge your friends to vote. I have no money to make a campaign. The Court House ring and the boss-controlled vote will be against me. I have not made a single pledge to any boss or organization for their support. My support must come from those both within and without the political organizations, who vote for the good of the community and not for the selfish interests of a few.

I can only reach you in this way. I want YOUR support.

A black and white portrait of George E. Mix, a man with dark hair, wearing a suit and tie, looking slightly to the right. The photo is framed within a rectangular border.

Judge Mix has practiced law in St. Louis for 16 years and his practice has been of a very general and thorough character, involving a great variety of cases in all of the courts; was appointed by Mayor Kiel as Judge of St. Louis City Court Two, in which position he has made a wonderful record.

His work in connection with the traffic conditions in St. Louis made the life of the pedestrian, especially little children and low-salubrious automobilists.

He has taken a firm stand against those who would cheat and defraud the housewife by resorting to short weights and short measures. He has been successful in securing the enforcement of the law in St. Louis by his strong enforcement of the law against the sale of adulterated and diluted milk and cream. Judge Mix developed the parole and probation system, the system of giving a high degree of credit to those that you may wish to come before him charged with a crime and other offenses, are given employment, instead of being sent to the workhouse.

His treatment of the unfortunate domestic cases has resulted in peace and contentment in the 300 homes in the city when strife and turmoil have previously existed.

Judge Mix has summoned to his assistance in all this work the officers of the City Probation Board, the Provident Association, Salvation Army, St. Vincent de Paul Society, Jewish Charities and all priests and ministers.

Since the system inaugurated by Judge Mix, the workhouse has fewer prisoners from the City Courts than ever before in the history of St. Louis, and in addition to all this the City Courts, instead of being crowded with debtors, as they have been in the past, are empty for the first time in their history, born not only self sustaining, but have turned in the City Treasury about $46,000.00 in excess of the cost.

ROULETTE SANCTUMS IN PARIS BANNED; DUELING FACES DOOM

New Bill Would Make "Honor Code" Settlements Punishable by Fine or Imprisonment.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.
PARIS, Aug. 2.—Playful, naughty Paris was startled into comparative soberness to learn on one and the same day that under the new finance law voted in the Senate Saturday night and published in the official Journal, the favorite casino of England, as well as all other roulette sanctums within 100 kilometers of Paris, have been suppressed and that several Deputies, headed by Gen. de Castelnau and Abbe Lemiere, propose by another law to suppress the duel.

The bill laid before the Chamber of Deputies by De Castelnau and his friends would make dueling an offense punishable by imprisonment of not less than one month nor more than a year or a fine of 100 to 1000 francs. Seconds and witnesses will be liable to the same punishment. The proposed law will forbid all trumpeting abroad, photographed or detailed reporting of duels. In future it is proposed a tribunal of honor will settle without appeal quarrels which hitherto have made recourse to the "judgment of God" inevitable in the French code of honor. Already fear is expressed that the proposed change will affect unfavorably fencing, which is described as one of these sports which France can hope to compete against the rest of the world.

POLICEMAN SOUGHT AFTER AUTO COLLISION

Joseph Vogel Fails to Report for Duty Following Accident; Others Hurt by Machines.

Patrolman Joseph Vogel of 1449 College avenue, attached to the Angelica Street District, is being sought today following his failure to report for duty at 11 o'clock last night. The Carondelet district, at 1 a. m. today, reported that an automobile driven by Vogel and occupied by another man and a woman had been wrecked in collision with another automobile at Walsh street and Idaho avenue.

Policemen visiting the Vogel home were told by the policeman's mother that he had told her he was taking a vacation and was going fishing. He left home in his automobile Sunday night, she said. She had not seen him since, she said.

William C. Rein, 3615 Gravois avenue, driver of the other automobile, told the police he was driving north in Idaho avenue when the other machine, westbound in Walsh street, crashed into his. One of the men in the other car, he said, apparently was injured seriously. The driver, he said, gave his name and address as Joseph Vogel of the College street number, called a taxicab and drove away with his companions, leaving the wrecked machine in the street. Vogel had been on a 12-day furlough and with his two recreation days his leave expired Sunday.

Vogel automatically suspended himself when he failed to report for duty within three-quarters of an hour of roll call. Capt. Wilson said he believed Vogel would be able to explain his absence satisfactorily when he returns.

Child Thrown Through Windshield.
Wilma Emms, 10, of 5500 Minnesota avenue, was thrown through the windshield of an automobile driven by her father, Wallace Emms, when the machine collided with an automobile driven by Henry A. Rosenberg, a shoe dealer of De Soto, Mo., at Michigan avenue and Bowen street, last night. She suffered a lacerated scalp and cuts on the body. Rosenberg said he had swerved his machine to avoid an automobile which had stopped behind a street car.

John J. Bolhofner, 21, of 1226 Ann 1305 Grattan street, suffered compound fractures of the left leg when thrown from a motor cycle on which they were riding when it collided with an automobile driven by Joseph Kemper Jr., 19, of 3748 Robert avenue, at Michigan and Loughborough avenues.

Boy Struck by Truck.
Thomas Mercurio, 7, of 1410 North Seventh street, suffered a fractured arm and internal injury when struck by a truck at Seventh and O'Fallon streets. The driver fled. Mary Hieh, 6, of 1725A South Ninth street, stepping back to the street car tracks in front of her home to avoid a southbound automobile, was struck by a northbound Cherokee car and knocked to one side of the street. She suffered internal hurts and a fractured right arm.

RUMANIA TO MOBILIZE UNLESS RUSSIANS WITHDRAW TROOPS

Ultimatum Sent to Soviets Gives Three Days for Evacuation of Territory.

By the Associated Press.
VIENNA, Aug. 2.—Rumania has served an ultimatum upon Soviet Russia, giving the Soviets three days to withdraw their troops from Rumanian territory, according to a Belgrade dispatch received here today. In the event of Russia's failure to comply, it is added, Rumania will declare a general mobilization.

Rumania's claims to Bessarabia, former Russian territory, adjoining Rumanian Moldavia and running to the edge of the Odessa district, have never been clearly defined. It was announced in London last May that Russia had agreed to a settlement of the Bessarabian question, without the approval of the allies, in accordance with the Rumanian Government's wishes, but this never seemed to have resulted satisfactorily for Rumania. Recently, the operations of the Bolsheviks against the Ukrainians and Poles in Podolia, have brought the Soviet forces close to Rumanian territory proper, although no reports of an actual crossing of the frontier have been received.

THREE MAIL MONOPLANES AT OMAHA IN CROSS-COUNTRY TRIP

One Machine Makes Flight From Chicago in Four Hours—Rickenbacker a Passenger.

By the Associated Press.
OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 2.—Blazing the trail for the coast to coast delivery of Uncle Sam's mail, three Larson monoplanes arrived at Ak-Sar-Ben Field yesterday.

The first machine made the trip in four hours and 11 minutes, leaving Chicago at 7:25. The second plane arrived 20 minutes later.

In the machine were Pilots S. C. Eaton and Bert Acosta, and mechanics H. S. Myers and Ernest Bush. Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, premier American ace, and John Larson, designer of the planes, arrived in the second machine, along with E. E. Allene of Cleveland. Maj. L. B. Lent, superintendent of the United States air mail service and John A. Bockhorst were passengers in the first plane.

The third plane arrived in Omaha at 6:15 p. m. This plane was in charge of Col. H. E. Hartley, chief of the training group of the army air service, and Lieut. Charles R. Colt.

Government Inspectors Declared Dr. Thomas Manning Issued That Many at $2 Each.

A count completed by Government inspectors today showed that 13,974 prescriptions for narcotic drugs were written by Dr. Thomas Manning between Jan. 20 last and July 20.

Dr. Manning was convicted Jan. 16 on a charge of conspiring to violate the Harrison act, and his penalty was fixed at two years' imprisonment. Since then he has been out on an appeal bond. He was arrested last Friday and Government agents, as was told, seized prescriptions which he had written and which had been filed at the drug stores of Francis & Bro., 1017 North Broadway, and Charles V. Eckert, Vandeventer avenue and Page boulevard.

The agents say that before Dr. Manning's conviction he charged $1 each for prescriptions, but since his conviction he has charged $2. Of the prescriptions seized 11,011 were filed at the Francis store and 2,963 at the Eckert store. At $2 each, these prescriptions, according to the agents, netted Dr. Manning $27,945.

Dr. Manning is under bond to answer a new charge of violating the anti-narcotic act. The maximum penalty is $5,000 fine and 6 years in the penitentiary.

A number of addicts went to the Federal building today and asked Government agents to give them copies authorizing druggists to fill narcotic prescriptions which they said had been written by Manning. They were told no such authorization would be given and were advised to go to the city hospital. Addicts told the agents that since Dr. Manning's arrest druggists are refusing to fill his prescriptions and that "drug peddlers" have taken advantage of this to charge $5 for a quantity of morphine which they formerly sold for $1.

Barnes and Hagen Even Series by Defeating Vardon and Ray, 4 and 2

Sunset Hill Golf Professional and American Open Champion Play Brilliantly in Beating British Stars, Hagen Breaking Record for New Jersey Club Course.

By Harry Vardon.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. WALTER HAGEN, your open champion, fresh from his victory over Jim Barnes for the Metropolitan open title, played masterful golf in every detail yesterday and, paired with Barnes, succeeded in evening the score of the series of best ball matches that it seems they are scheduled to play against Ed Ray and me. They trounced us soundly 4 up and 2 to play, but there was little or no mediocre golf played at any hole of the course of the Hollywood Golf Club at Deal, N. J., where we played the match.

Incidentally Hagen, with a score of 70 for the 18 holes of the second round, broke the course record, which had been 73, or par. If he had not made that 70, Ray would have set a new record, too, for he required only one stroke more in the second round than did the first round. It is a record that has been given Hagen for making the lowest score.

The first round found none of us going around in the good form. But even so, they were able to outplay us and end the round 4 up for the 18 holes. I confess it looked rather dark for us, for a team of four is difficult to overcome, even when our opponents are not quite the caliber of Hagen and Barnes. But against players such as they are—and I think that they have few or no equals in the world—it is impossible, as we learned in the afternoon play.

Hagen in Splendid Form. We started well after lunch and succeeded in winning the sixth hole, which cut down their lead to three. We had a glint of hope, but it did us no good, for when we, either of us, made a brilliant play, as Ray did on one or two of the holes, we were always neutralized by a counter hit of brilliant playing by Barnes or Hagen, usually Hagen. I said usually Hagen because yesterday was certainly Hagen's day. He, amazingly strong finisher that he is, made the most astounding shots all day.

The breaks were against Jim Barnes yesterday. So many times did he accurately have his direction and then heartbreakingly rim the cup that I lost count of them. His did play well, and had it not been for the many strokes that did not go to his credit because the gods of golf were not with him, he very probably would have run Hagen and Ray a close race for the score.

Ed Ray played his usual game, turning in a score of 77 for the first round. He was on his putting game and his driving had quite as much length as it has had at any other time since our arrival. I have seen him make a brilliant play, as we learned in the afternoon play.

SECOND INSTALLMENT.

SUSAN was talking to Commodore Michelin's wife when her adventure opened. A stroll through the lobby of the inn—a glance at the register—had shown her that the season's rush had not yet started.

"If I wait till the place is crowded," she had told herself. "It will be hard to tell who's who. But by going early I shall be able to keep in touch with the new arrivals."

So, like an early bird, she had come early, and almost immediately she caught her first glimpse of the worm.

The eastern veranda of the inn commanded two scenes, one being the Atlantic Ocean, the other the entrance driveway. It was a favorite place with the experienced ones. They seated themselves ostensibly to look at grandeur, but a glance over the ocean now and then gave them a generous opportunity to keep an eye on current events as well.

It didn't take Susan long to see that Glenn's appointment to the Circuit Court branch had given her a social standing which she hadn't enjoyed before.

"I'm somebody now," she thought, "even though it cost me Glenn." For her brother, she believed, would never have married if he had remained a more or less obscure and struggling lawyer.

"He couldn't have afforded a wife," she thought. "He could never have found one who would have economized as I did." And then, after all those years of careful management on her part, of careful grooming, of careful planning and pushing, to think that just as soon as his income had jumped to a most assured and amazing figure he should turn around and marry a girl whom she had never liked!

In and out of these thoughts she was chatting with Mrs. Michelin, as calm and cool as she always was, and amazingly good to look upon. It was nearly dinner time when the disheveled runabout rolled up to the entrance. Susan had never seen such wheels before, although the car itself, a famous make, was familiar to her. Two men were in the seat, a chauffeur and a rather stout man, slightly under middle age. He was dressed in tailored homespuns, was smoking a pipe and wore a corcorps in his buttonhole.

"He wasn't here last year, was he?" asked Mrs. Michelin.

"I don't recall him," replied Susan, her feeling of adventure growing warmer every moment. "A runabout, a chauffeur and a lot of leather bags," she had just been thinking. "That ought to mean a bachelor. He's dressed like one, too, and that awful flower and pipe! Yes, if he were married he would have a larger car, and she would probably be with him, too. I wonder who he is," she said aloud.

"I just feel curious enough to find out," said Mrs. Michelin, briskly. "Here comes the Commodore. Perhaps he can tell us."

The Commodore had come to take his wife in to dinner.

"Judson," she said, "you know everything and everybody." He winked a droll eye at Susan.

"Find out, if you can, who that man is who just came in, the one in the homespun and the cap." "I have him already," said the Commodore, not without pride. "Morganthau recognized him. He's Grayson Salisbury, a modern young Lochinvar out of the West. Made I don't know how many millions by a new process of milling flour. They say he's come East this summer to shake the dust out of his clothes."

It is hard to tell exactly what Susan thought as she listened. A sense of proprietorship, almost of hunger for proprietorship, swept over her. If she had been one of those wild women who are sometimes said to have ruled prehistoric man, one could imagine her crouching for the spring and whispering to herself, "That's mine!"

For the last few minutes the guests on the veranda had gradually been drifting inside. "The dining room's open," said the Commodore. "Won't you join us, Miss Merriam?" Inspiration laid its ghostly hand on Susan's shoulder, and whispered in her ear.

"A little later, if you don't mind," she said. "I have a short letter to write."

There was a writing desk, she remembered, in the office lounge, where one could sit and watch the stairway that made its turns to the floor above.

"He must have gone up to dress for dinner," she thought, "and there'll hardly be anyone around." As she guessed, the public rooms were deserted. She seated herself at the desk and covertly watched the stairs.

"He's coming!" she breathed, and picking up a small object from the desk, she started up the stairs to meet him, carefully balancing the article she was carrying, her head bent over in anxiety not to spill its contents.

They met at a turn of the stairs. If you had been watching you could have sworn to yourself that Susan didn't see him until too late. There was a slight collision; her elbow brushed against him, not with any alarming force, but hard enough to make her drop the inkwell which she had been carrying.

"Oh!" she gasped. "I didn't see you!" He tried to tell her how sorry he was.

"I must have been cutting the corner too close," he said. "I'm awfully sorry about your dress."

"Oh, I don't care about the frock," she said, in a moment. "It's the carpet I was thinking of." She gave him a comic little look—a look which had always melted Glenn. "Shall you tell?" she asked.

"Not a word!" "Oh, dear! Then I shall have to. And to make it worse, I'm stealing the ink—taking it up to my room."

It was finally agreed that he should accept the responsibility for the carpet, and that she should laugh, as best she could, at her dress. By that time, as you will guess, they were beginning to know each other.

"You are going down to dinner?" she asked, still pursuing her adventure.

He looked as though he were searching his soul for a witty answer, but lamely answered, "Yes." "Commodore Michelin and his wife are waiting for me. Would you mind telling them that Miss Merriam has been detained by a slight accident, but will join them in a few minutes?"

"Miss Merriam," he repeated, bowing. Quite in the old manner she made him a courtesy, and holding their distaff, thread and shears, the three invisible figures of Fate made curtsy with her.

"Some day perhaps we shall have a proper introduction," he said, "but in the meantime my name is Grayson Salisbury."

"Mr. Salisbury." Again he bowed, again she curtsied low, and again the Sisters Three made curtsy with her.

"There!" she thought, entering her room a few minutes later. "That was better than a dozen ordinary introductions." And glancing toward the mirror as she stepped out of her dress, she shook her finger at herself and whispered, half chidingly, half admiringly, "Oh, you wise, wise virgin!"

As soon as dinner was over Susan seated herself on a secluded part of the veranda. She had a scarf around her shoulders and was holding in her hand the letter which she had written to Glenn.

"Dear Glenn (it read), will you please find out everything you can, especially financially, about Grayson Salisbury—a flour man or a miller or something of that sort—who, they say, has made millions out West just lately? I'll put his address in the P. S. as soon as I've seen the register. A friend of mine has asked for this information and is very anxious to have it soon. Hoping you are well, and with love to Helen and the children, I am, yours, SUSAN."

As she sat there dreaming, listening to the orchestra and the far-off thunder of waves, she played with this letter, turning it over and over. "If I really interested him," she was thinking,

"I don't care about the frock. It's the carpet. Shall you tell?"

As she sat there dreaming, listening to the orchestra and the far-off thunder of waves, she played with this letter, turning it over and over. "If I really interested him," she was thinking, of Mendelssohn's minor melodies, and the letter in her hand turned over and over with renewed activity. Yes, he was coming, walking around the veranda as she had guessed, "and keeping his eyes open."

"Miss Merriam?" She looked up at him in polite surprise, as cool as a breeze from the north.

"I suppose I shouldn't say it," she said, "but I was thinking of you."

"Of me?" "Yes, I was thinking that, although you brought no letter of introduction, there has been considerable ink spilled between us. I don't do that often," she contritely confessed, and dropping her voice to a deeper note, which had something of awe and something of mystery in it—that note which sometimes seems to mean that a woman is nearer to God than a man can ever hope to be.

"he will walk around the veranda, keeping his eyes open."

Perhaps she saw him coming with that extra pair of eyes which poetical anatomists sometimes place in the back of a woman's head; or perhaps prehistorians would tell us that in their wild state woman could scent her prey from afar, even as the tiger does today. Whatever the explanation, she suddenly began humming to herself one

—she made a gesture toward the west. "Isn't it wonderful—out there?" she said.

He had taken the chair by her side, and as she leaned over the veranda rail he watched her. She was well worth watching—her lips slightly parted, her eyes shining as though they looked upon joyous, invisible things. The glory of the sunset was one of the few things which could still bring upon her those thrills which are the pulse and power of youth.

They chatted lightly for a few minutes, and then she regretfully arose.

"I must go and find a car, if I can," she said. "This letter—to my brother—I ought to have it down at the postoffice before the mail closes."

He had risen with her and together they walked toward the entrance steps.

"If you like," he shyly suggested, "I'll run you down in my machine."

They walked along a few steps in silence, and he began to fear that he had displeased her.

"Do you know that we are getting on rather tremendously fast?" she suddenly asked, turning and giving him one of her even glances.

"I'll get a coat and fetch the car," he promptly replied. "It won't take a minute." And as he hurried upstairs, as intent upon his adventure as Susan was upon hers, he said to himself: "Old Timer, luck is with you again. You've got a real queen started."

That night, under the roof of the inn, two persons lay awake for a long time, dreaming those dreams of which the world is made.

"I guess I've found her, all right," thought Grayson, and echoing a thought which had been growing stronger in his mind for months, he asked himself a rather interesting riddle: "What's the use of piling it up if you've got no one to leave it to when you die?"

From out of his dreams uncertain little faces smiled down upon him, like the cherubim in medieval canvases.

"They'd have an easier time than their father ever had," he promised himself, and for some strange reason he felt an ache in his throat.

His thoughts turned to Susan.

"I always said I'd marry a girl with class. She could hold her end up anywhere. And, Lord! what a mother she'd make." He addressed the cherubim with a knowing smile. "She'd make you too the mark!" said he.

Thus dreamed Grayson that night, while in the northern wing Susan also followed her fancies, and cared not where they led her.

"It was worth waiting for," she thought. "If he really grows to care for me—and I think he will—I haven't been a wise virgin all my life for nothing."

She contrasted him with the other men she had known—men whom she might have had in the past.

"Poor Perry," she thought, "and his imitation pearl necklace. I think I'd have had him, too, if it hadn't been for Glenn." How well Glenn knew. "When a girl marries," he had told her, "she puts all her chances behind her. But if she stays single and keeps attractive, she has all the world to choose from yet."

And then there was Carl Manville, who cried so—"married now," thought Susan, "and has four children and a wife who will keep him poor as long as he lives."

"And Harris Kennedy," she continued, "who wanted to pretend that I had led him on, just because I let him take me around that winter when Glenn was away. Glenn hated him—something in politics, I think."

For a long time, then, she looked out into the night, feeling again those dreams which often seem to come with the whisper of waves, and that vague echo of eternity which only the ocean and the stars can bring.

"I wish I were younger," she sighed at last, and following this world-old longing a feeling of sadness swept over her. "I wish I had met him—well, when I met Perry, for instance—and didn't have to listen to my feet."

Perhaps her feet had been speaking to her then. In any event, she had slipped off her shoes, and, padding around the room, she now carefully drew the shades and turned on the lights. Then, carrying a hand glass under the chandelier, she parted her hair with her fingers until she came to the gray strand which lay hidden there—like a skeleton in the attic.

"I think I had better have it dyed," she told herself. "He may see it if—my hair gets rough." And again, "I wish I were younger," she sighed.

But if you had seen her with Grayson the next two months you would never have thought that she mourned for youth at night. Calm and cool, she was the beautiful snow queen, waiting for the prince to come and wake her into glory with a kiss.

One afternoon they went to see The Old Man of the Sea—a long ride through scenes so beautiful that Susan knew she would never forget them. From Grayson's conversation she caught the bits of his life, odd shaped and often brilliantly colored, which tallied well with the report which Glenn had sent her in answer to her letter. All these fragments she carefully placed away in her mind, to be pieced together later with other bits—a growing jigsaw of his past.

"You must have had a wonderful life," she said once.

"It's had its hard spots," he told her, "but it's had its recompenses, too—days like this, for instance."

For the first time she caught a tremor in his voice—that tremor for which a woman's ear is most exquisitely tuned.

"It's coming," she whispered to herself. The thought brought a deeper color to her cheeks, a warmer light to her eyes. Perhaps in their depth he saw again the cherubim of his dreams. One of her hands rested on the door of the car. The other—the one nearest him—lay curled upon her knee. She knew that he was looking at it.

"Don't do that," she said a minute later, when his fingers lightly touched her.

His straying hand returned to the wheel. Susan breathlessly waited. Would he do it again? Years ago Perry had first touched her hand like that.

Again she felt the light pressure of Grayson's fingers.

Susan turned her face to the sea—her hand captive.

"I've got him," she proudly told herself. He's mine!"

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

By HELEN ROWLAND.

AT this capricious season of the year, a man's "I love you" is worth about as much as a Bolshevik's "I O U."

"Beware the Greeks most when they offer gifts"—a woman must, when she offers platonic friendship.

Warning a man against a dangerously fascinating woman is about as effective as telling a small boy the "cherry-tree" story, and then handing him a hatchet to play with.

Nowadays, when a man makes up his mind to marry a girl, he doesn't pursue her—he merely stops running.

Somewhat, when you see a great, big, apparently intelligent man trying to babble baby talk to a little flirty flapper, it reminds you of a poor old circus elephant begging for peanuts.

Where is the man who used to carry his wife's picture in the back of his watch, where he could see it? Gone, gone, dear heart, with the girl who used to carry her money in her stocking, "where nobody could see it."

The way of the transgressor, as a general rule, is to blame it on a woman—either the one who "drove" him to it, or the one who "lured" him to it.

The secret of social reform may not be so much in holding women up to the standard of angels as in holding men up to the standards of women.

Today's daughter doesn't play with dolls and learn to grow up and marry and have four children. She goes to the movies, and plans to grow up and be a "vamp" and have four husbands.

An egotist is a man who goes through life paying himself.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Reddy Fox Trusts His Nose.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

What'er he does, where'er he goes
A Fox will always trust his nose.

—Reddy Fox.

JOLLY, round red Mr. Sun had gone to bed behind the Purple Hills. The Black Shadows were creeping across the Green Meadows and all through the Green Forest. Reddy Fox watched them from the edge of the Old Pasture. He was waiting for it to get quite dark. As he waited he grinned.

"If nothing has happened to Peter Rabbit, and I don't believe anything has, he has simply been staying at home in the dear Old Briar-patch. And if Peter has been staying at home in the Old Briar-patch all these days and nights it is for a reason. There is something there that interests him more than gadding about gossiping, and it must be something very interesting indeed to do that."

I have an idea that Peter has a secret and that that secret will interest me quite as much as it does Peter.

As soon as it was dark enough to suit him, Reddy started toward the Old Briar-patch. He trotted swiftly until he could see just ahead of him a shadow in the midst of the Black Shadows he had watched creep out from the Purple Hills. He knew it wasn't a Shadow at all but the Old Briar-patch itself. Then Reddy began to move very slowly and cautiously, crouching low and every two or three steps stopping to look and listen.

Reddy knew exactly where were the patches of sweet clover nearest the Old Briar-patch and it was toward the nearest of these that he now crept. You see Reddy makes it his business to know such things as this. He makes it his business to know all about everything that interests those in whom he is himself interested. He is always interested in Peter and Mrs. Peter, and so he knows all about their favorite clover patches and other eating places. He knows just which ones are within a jump or two of the Old Briar-patch, and which ones are far enough away to make them a bit dangerous for a careless young Rabbit.

The clover patches nearest the Old Briar-patch were the ones he was interested in now. He examined the first one very carefully, smelling the ground all about between it and the edge of the Old Briar-patch. He did the same thing at the next patch of clover. Both times he shook his head in disappointment.

But at the third patch of sweet clover his eyes suddenly gleamed with satisfaction and eagerness. Reddy grinned. That wonderful nose of his had found the fresh scent of the bowing and frequent motions of the bowing showing green or bloody mucus, get a physician right away.

Pure milk, fresh air, sensible clothing and regular habits are the best guards against summer complaint. For children over one year, whose diet is varied, care must be taken to keep their bowels open.

he followed each little line of scent. Often they were so mixed together that he couldn't tell them apart. Then they would separate. Reddy was in no hurry. He took his time and he worked carefully.

At last he was satisfied. He glanced once toward the Old Briar-patch, grinned, and then trotted away as silently as he had come. "Six," said Reddy. "Six, and no one knows about them but me."

What interested him most was the faint scent of young Rabbits all about. Slowly, patiently, carefully,

By MRS. ELIZABETH KENT.

Baby in the Summer. INFANT mortality is heavy in the summer months, especially in the cities. This is due to the dreaded "summer complaint," more than to any other one disease.

And what causes summer complaint, or cholera infantum, as this form of dysentery is sometimes called?

Usually, impure milk, or impure water. The infant death rate in some big cities has been reduced by more than half, by the improvement of the milk supply, therefore the first thing to do for the baby, as the summer months come on, is to make sure about his milk. It is always of vital importance, but in summer, milk spoils so quickly that it is doubly difficult to get it good.

If there is any doubt about your milk or water, pasteurize the one and boil the other, even for children 4 or 5 years old.

If a baby has diarrhoea, more than the normal two or three soft yellow movements a day, act promptly. Give him a teaspoonful of castor oil and stop his milk, feeding him on strained barley gruel and plenty of cool boiled water until the diarrhoea is checked. Put him back on his milk gradually, and increase the proportion of lime water by a tablespoonful for a day or two. If the baby is really very sick, with vomiting and frequent motions of the bowels showing green or bloody mucus, get a physician right away.

their food clean and pure, and not let them play in the hot sun in the heat of the day. A rest time, even if they will not sleep, should be insisted upon for an hour after the midday meal.

To Find Soiled Spots.

When cleaning a garment it is often difficult to find the spots after the article is wet. This can be obviated by running a thread around each spot before starting the cleaning process.

As the advance fall dress models appear in the shops it is apparent that black will still be the favorite color. Embroidery in brilliant tones brightens the somber effect of these dresses. In suits and coats it looks as though navy and brown would again be the favored shades.

One of the novel features of the State College of Industrial Arts at Denton, Tex., is the teaching of young women how to be dairy maids.

SUPPORT TO FRANCE
IN CASE OF ATTAMilitary Alliance Also Pro
for Neutrality in Case Dispute Over Colonies

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The terms of the defensive military alliance between France and Belgium drawn up by Marshal Foch, French army and the Belgian staff were received here today from official circles.

Military support of France by Belgium in future armed conflict pledged upon condition that Belgium prove not to have been the aggressor. Belgium also reserves the right to remain neutral in all disputes between the interests of France and other nations in France's possessions. Details as to the pledge to Belgium have not yet received.

The alliance is to endure for a period of from five to 15 years, understood that before official ratification the terms will be submitted to the League of Nations for approval following similar action by the British and Japanese governments in advising the league of the terms of the Anglo-Japanese alliance would be submitted to the league in order to bring its provisions into conformity with the league's principles.

The general lines of the agreement were drawn up in June at the visit of the Belgian chief of state to Paris to consult with Foch.

Attempts of Belgium to Great Britain to join with France in the defensive alliance, the advice stated, have so far been vain. The last visit of King George to London was said to have been the interest of influencing a decision by Great Britain to unilaterally support the French government was attributed to the general of the president of Belgium in extending with the occupation of Germany without first having obtained sanction of the supreme council.

Premier Makes Half-Hearted
Pledge of Churchill's Appeal

SPECIAL CABLE TO THE POST-DISPATCH
LONDON, Aug. 2.—Lloyd George, when questioned by the House of Commons yesterday about War Minister Winston Churchill's article appealing to Germany to save Europe from Bolshevism, made a very half-hearted defense of the article. It is understood that Minister Churchill was hauled over the coals at a meeting in the forenoon. Churchill's action in writing the article has been condemned by every section of the press. The House of Commons only 28 members supported a motion to give to a discussion upon it, showing completely the House is out of touch with public feeling.

Premier Lloyd George protested by declaring: "I cannot control my colleagues."

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY
By James J. Montague.

THE INACCESSIBLE.

I think that I might have the cheek,
My shy reserve discarding,
Some evening to walk up and speak
To Warren Something Harding.
Hank Lodge's mein is stern and cold,
But it might interest him
To know that once I grew full bold
And actually addressed him.
I'm not embarrassed by the fame
Of notables who serve us,
I'm getting on—but just the same
Hotel clerks make me nervous.

The manners of these stern young men
Quite frequently deceive me—
I start to speak to them—and then
They walk away and leave me.
It steeps me in the depths of gloom,
It kills my self-possession,
To tell them that I want a room
And note their pained expression.
I always try to talk my best—
Like lawyers to a jury—
But such an insolent request
Appears to rouse their fury.

I patted once—in 1903
J. Pierpont Morgan's spaniels,
I know a man who once took tea
With Secretary Daniels.
I've seen Rube Goldberg take a drink.
My former business partner
Once rolled around a skating rink
With Ringold W. Lardner.
But though I've known the high and great
And found them worth the knowing,
For me is locked one social gate;
Hotel clerks have me going.

ONWARD AND UPWARD.
The peak of high prices has been reached, but the profiteers are erecting a higher peak on the adjoining property.

BREAKING THE NEWS.
It must have relieved Mr. Harding to learn from the Notification Committee that the Chicago convention had named him for President.

Out of His Time.

Quick wit is indispensable in the vaudeville performer. Witness Beatrice Hereford, on an occasion when she was giving an entertainment. The audience was at close attention when a large black cat meandered in front of the wings, sat down in the center of the stage and began, cat fashion, to make itself clean.

"Sh! Sh!" came promptly from Miss Hereford, a ripple of laughter arose. "Beat! This is a monologue, not a catalogue." And the feline departed amid the applause of the spectators.—Philadelphia Ledger.

"That so?" grinned Mr. Gabb. "Who did you get to talk to him?"—Milwaukee Sentinel.
